You open two shimmering portals at the selected locations; each humming with a strange power. All creatures within 10 feet of the portal are alerted if they have a passive perception above 12. You can pass any object/spell/creature through these portals. Anything passed through will be immediately brought through to the other side of the portal. You can use the portals like a window, and can see through with ease though this is applied to those on the other side of the portals. You can send the portal through objects and walls beyond your scope of vision, though this does not mean that you are aware of what is on the other end.
